What is the Alabama RC&D?

Resource Conservation and Development Councils are non-profit organizations that are made up of volunteers who identify the unmet needs in their communities and create solutions.

The Alabama Association of RC&D includes nine Councils that depend on the leadership, abilities, and unique skills of the individuals within the communities they serve.

The high level of volunteer commitment and credibility has made RC&D one of the most successful delivery systems in Alabama.

RC&D Councils are dedicated to conserving, enhancing, and developing Alabama to make our state a better place to live, work, and play.

Who can benefit from RC&D?

We award grant funding opportunities to 501c3 Non-Profit Organizations and units and sub-units of government for special projects that enhance our natural resources to improve the quality of life for local Alabama citizens.
What types of projects are funded?

• Education Fund Projects – must have an educational component

• General Fund Projects – all projects without an educational component
Which Council to Contact?

All 67 Counties in Alabama belong to one of our 9 Councils. You can visit our website, alabamarcd.org, to locate which Council Area your County falls under.

If your project involves 3 or more Council Areas, you are eligible to apply for a Statewide grant from the Alabama Association.
When to apply for grant funding?

All RC&D projects run on a fiscal year cycle, which begins on October 1st.

All 9 Councils accept grant applications during the spring and summer months. Applications are reviewed before October 1st so that all approved projects may begin at that time.
